Arab League force suggested to keep peace in Lebanon

CAIRO, Jan. 17 (R). — A member of the Egyptian Parliament, Umar Abu-Stait, tonight suggested the formation of an Arab League military force to maintain order and bring together all opposing factions in Lebanon.
Mr. Abu Stait said Arab parties confronting Israel should be excluded from this force. These parties were Egypt, Syria, Jordan and the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO).
Parliament was discussing a foreign policy statement made by Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy on January 5, but many members focussed their remarks on the developments in Lebanon.
A tentative agreement was just been concluded between Egypt and Syria to end the civil war in Lebanon. The agreement was signed in Frankfurt (Germany) and Reconstruction Committee members said it was a plot to strike against Arab and African solidarity," he said.
Another member, Mamdouh Ouda, said what was happening in Lebanon was part of a Zionist plot aimed at diverting Arab people's attention from their main cause and for NATO countries liquidation of the Palestinian issue.

Rescuers plan new descent at Indian mine disaster site

NEW DELHI, Jan. 17 (R). — Two teams of rescuers prepared today to descend deep into the flooded Chasnalla coal mine, in northeastern India, where at least 400 men—and possibly 600—were feared killed in a disaster on December 7.
Government and mine officials have refused to confirm that as many as 600 might be in the flooded shafts which could confirm an estimate reached by the number of unclaimed bicycles left at the site.
The bar — Sheridan's in the New Lodge area of the city — was filling up with Saturday night drinkers when the blast ripped through the building.
A member of the security forces at the scene said: "The place is an absolute mess." Two of the injured were reported to be badly hurt.
It was the most serious explosion in Belfast since Tuesday, when four people were killed by a bomb blast in the city centre.
Government officials said Tuesday's explosion was the work of the Provisional Irish Republican Army (IRA) and the dead included two guerrillas who blew themselves up planning the device.
There was no immediate indication who was responsible for tonight's bomb in the bar, but some observers speculated that Protestant extremists might be involved.
In Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city, a British soldier was shot dead and two others were wounded today by Provisional IRA gunmen amid crowds of shoppers.
The attackers — three youths aged 18 to 20 — walked up to an army checkpoint in Londonderry's shopping centre and shot dead a 19-year-old soldier.

N-Ireland incidents result in 3 more deaths

BELFAST, Jan. 17 (R). — Two people were killed and 18 injured tonight when a bomb exploded without warning at a bar in a Catholic area of Belfast.
The bar — Sheridan's in the New Lodge area of the city — was filling up with Saturday night drinkers when the blast ripped through the building.
A member of the security forces at the scene said: "The place is an absolute mess." Two of the injured were reported to be badly hurt.

Israeli leftists protest settlements in West Bank

JERUSALEM, Jan. 17 (AFP). — Several dozen left-wing demonstrators were today camping near the Israeli occupied West Bank base at Kadoum, in protest at another illegal settlement there by the right-wing Gush Emunim movement.
According to the demonstrators, about 15 Gush Emunim families moved into the abandoned military camp under the protection of the Israeli army.
They said they would leave the area when the settlers moved out.
The Labour-dominated government of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin has refused to authorize previous attempts by the Gush Emunim to establish settlements on the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan.
The Israeli left maintains that Israeli settlements in occupied territory would compromise the chances of peaceful coexistence between Jews and Arabs.

Sadat confers with aides to tackle Lebanese situation

CAIRO, Jan. 17 (R). — President Anwar Sadat conferred with his top aides today to consider what help Egypt could give to end the civil war in Lebanon or protect the Palestinian presence there.
The meeting, held at the president's country home about 20 miles outside Cairo, was attended by Vice-President Hosni Mubarak, Prime Minister Mamdouh Salem and Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy.
The Egyptian concern over Lebanon has intensified with attacks by the Lebanese air force against left-wing positions.
Egypt, which has so far kept aloof in the civil war, is trying to play a conciliatory role between the warring sides, and is particularly worried about the worsening situation, in view of Palestinian involvement in the battle.
President Satat, in a statement yesterday, urged an immediate end to what he described as "aggression" against Palestinian refugee camps and called for the trial of those responsible for the intervention of the Lebanese air force.
"The Palestinian resistance movement is a trust in the hands of the Lebanese government," the strong-worded statement said.
But observers believed that despite the firm Egyptian position, Egypt was unlikely to make a unilateral move and might even caution against Arab military intervention, which could provide Israel with a pretext to intervene.
President Sadat was reported to have obtained a promise from the U.S. that Israel would desist from any such move.

Tel Aviv would welcome relations with Spain

JERUSALEM, Jan. 17 (R). — Foreign Minister Yigal Allon today welcomed the possibility that Spain and Israel might establish diplomatic relations for the first time.
He was commenting on an Israeli television report which quoted Spanish Foreign Minister Jose Maria de Azuela as saying that Spain might consider opening relations with Israel.
"Israel would welcome normalisation of relations with Spain and would react favourably to the intentions expressed by the Spanish Foreign Minister to establish full diplomatic relations in the not too distant future," Mr. Allon said in a statement.
Israel television reported today that King Juan Carlos of Spain had expressed interest in such a move and said the message had been unofficially passed to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

Zaire air, troop involvement in Angola reported

LONDON, Jan. 17 (R). — Troops and aircraft operating from Zaire have been involved in fighting in Angola over the last days, according to press reports today in Moscow, Belgrade and Havana.
In New York, there were reports that Zaire was contemplating a diplomatic initiative at the United Nations. The report said the Zaire government was considering asking the Security Council to send a fact-finding mission to the Angola-Zaire border area.
There was no confirmation of the reports and U.N. officials said they had not heard of such an initiative.
Tass news agency from Moscow said the aircraft involved in the fighting were Zaire warplanes and six people had been killed in raids to cover a retreat by forces of the western-backed National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA).
Prensa Latina from Havana said a French-built Mirage jet fighter from Zaire had killed eight people and wounded four others in three rocket attacks earlier this week in the same area.
Earlier today, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported dispatches from its Luanda correspondent which said four Zaire soldiers were killed when an unidentified force tried to invade the northern Angola enclave of Cabinda.
Tanjug quoted leaders of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) as saying the attack, in the Sandmasala and Congotari regions of the oil-rich enclave, was driven back by MPLA defenders.
In Washington, the Washington Star newspaper reported that U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has told African nations he believes the Angolan civil war would be over in one month's time, probably ended by diplomatic means.
The newspaper cited information sources, saying that Dr. Kissinger gave his views to 37 African diplomats at a State Department meeting earlier this week.
The newspaper said the U.S. officials felt Dr. Kissinger may already have a Soviet commitment to stop its supply of weapons to the MPLA.
The Star said others felt the MPLA, having made considerable territorial gains, was now able to negotiate from a position of strength.
In a related development, about 6,000 Angolans and Portuguese have taken refuge in the airport of the southern Angolan town of Sada Bandeira to escape fighting there between nationalist groups, a Portuguese government spokesman said in Lisbon today.

Chamoun besieged in home town as Lebanese rightists lose ground

BEIRUT, Jan. 17 (Agencies). — Church bells tolled in Christian suburbs of Beirut tonight as Lebanese right-wingers lashed back at the loss of a Christian town to leftist forces early today, a battle in which 250 people are reported to have died.
A right-wing leader appealed to the people to march to the relief of other beleaguered Christian communities south of Beirut, and a few hours later rightist militants seized the Serail (local government office) and the left-wing sieges of Damour and Saadiyat.
The Palestinian news agency Wafa said Mr Arafat was concerned for the safety of Mr Chamoun and had sent some guerilla officers, accompanied by Lebanese army officers, to Saadiyat to escort Mr Chamoun, a former Lebanese President, to safety.
The message was seen as a blunt rebuff to Moslem Prime Minister Rashid Karami who says the jets were sent in against his orders.
Arab Ambassadors in Beirut who had separate meetings earlier today with Mr Franjeh and Mr Karami later met Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat for the second time in 24 hours.
Diplomatic sources said they were trying to secure a ceasefire and the lifting of right-wing sieges of Palestinian camps and the left-wing sieges of Damour and Saadiyat.
It said that 8,000 Christian refugees from fighting in the area were sheltering in Mr Chamoun's palace at Saadiyat.
A spokesman for Mr Chamoun's National Liberal Party said that Mr Chamoun's son Dany issued an appeal for the people to telephone and telex links cut since Thursday night.
The central city of Zahle, where bloody clashes broke out again yesterday, was said to be calmer but tense.
In Beirut the battle between left and right-wing forces in the seaside hotel district, the city centre and the eastern and southern suburbs appeared to be deadlocked.
The fighting eased slightly, but there was no sign of the warring forces moving towards a truce.
Premier Rashid Karami denounced yesterday's air attack which was ordered against his wishes by the army commander-in-chief, Major-General Hanna Said.
The attack threatened a crisis of loyalty for the army, as Mr Karami is Defence Minister as well as Premier and theoretically should have the last word on what the armed forces do.
But in his broadcast statement Mr Karami gave no hint that he intended to take any action against insubordinate military commanders.

Ceasefire announced

Radio Lebanon broadcast a communiqué by Prime Minister Karami at midnight Saturday saying that the Arab ambassadors' mediation efforts had resulted in a new agreement by all sides in the fighting to cease-fire at 2:00 a.m. Sunday morning.
All parties had agreed, the communiqué said, to stop fighting and withdraw from the battle zones throughout the country as well as throughout Beirut. No further details were made available.

Others tried to take over the Serail in the hill suburb of Babada, just a few hundred yards from the palace of President Suleiman Franjeh.
Another crowd attacked the internal security headquarters in Beirut itself, where shots were fired.
Christian anger was roused by the loss of the town of Jyde to left-wing and Palestinian forces and the continuing siege of the nearby town of Damour and village of Saadiyat.
The village is the home of Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, leader of the National Liberal Party.

Waldheim says fighting is threat to M. E. peace

UNITED NATIONS, Jan. 17 (R). — United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim today told the Lebanese Ambassador to the U.N. he felt that fighting in Lebanon was a threat to peace throughout the Middle East, the ambassador said.
A U.N. spokesman said Dr. Waldheim had asked for the meeting for a general discussion of the situation, not specifically related to Lebanese air force involvement in bombing attacks yesterday.
Asked if any move might be made to bring the Lebanese issue to the Security Council — empowered under the U.N. charter to discuss what it sees as any threat to international peace — Ambassador Ghorra said the Lebanese government could take no action on its own.
Dr. Waldheim could himself ask the Council to take it up, but Mr. Ghorra said he knew of no moves to involve the Council.

End of the bluff

Now that the EEC has come out in favour of a floor price for oil of $7 per barrel, a few aspects of the past two years' acrimonious energy debate come into sharper focus.

By far the loudest and harshest oratory has been the American mania about bringing down the price of oil, a mania inevitably coupled in public pronouncements to references to Arab oil blackmailers, oil-rich sheikhs or some other such colourful connotation. Immediately after the dramatic oil price increases of October and November 1973, the Americans — particularly Henry Kissinger and William Simon — never passed up an opportunity to cajole or threaten the oil producers with dire consequences if the price of oil did not come down. Henry Kissinger, at one particularly somber moment, was wondering aloud about the chances of western civilisation surviving much past the next meeting of OPEC oil ministers.

After a year and then two years passed, and the industrialised nations adjusted to the higher price of oil, there was much less talk about attacking the oil producers and much less speculation in the international press about when the world would come to an end. In fact, the initial burst was a bluff, and now it happens that the world's industrial nations are interested in keeping the price of oil up beyond a level where their huge investments in energy sources will bring in a reasonable profit. (This brings up the ironic situation where now the world's major oil producers have a significant economic card to play if they decide to lower the price of oil.)

The EEC backing for a crude oil floor price of $7 per barrel is primarily aimed at protecting investments in North Sea oil, where production costs have skyrocketed way beyond initial estimates. The same has happened for Alaska oil, and is particularly significant in the industrial states' hopes to draw oil from shale rock. If world oil prices hover around the $11-$12 per barrel mark, as they do now, it is hopelessly uneconomical to invest in shale oil or exotic offshore oil technology.

What all this means is that the next time the Americans or the Europeans or the Japanese or anyone else starts yelling about international economic blackmail or mutters vague phrases about the strangulation of the world's economies, we should ask them to clarify their meanings and intentions. If they are acting out of the natural concern for the welfare of civilisation, somebody should remind them that there are people in the Middle East who are equally concerned about the perpetuation of civilisation.

But if they are simply yelling out because they are slowly losing the grip they have enjoyed over the international economic ballgame, perhaps they will slowly come to appreciate that cooperation and consultation in this game are far more beneficial all around than domination and exploitation. The EEC $7 per barrel floor price is a major step in this direction.

ARAB PRESS COMMENTARY

Al Ra'i on Saturday said that confrontation is the basic issue at hand right now and the Arabs are not willing to step aside from the current debate at the U.N. Security Council regardless of plans by certain foreign powers to have them do so.

Al-Ra'i said that the "Plot-ers" are trying to put an end to the success of the Arab diplomatic effort and consequently smear the nature of the Palestinian struggle.

"The Arabs," the paper said, "are receiving a wide range of understanding from the international community now that the battle of Palestine has moved from within a small circle to cover the whole world."

"Zionism," it continued, "has always tried to change the nature of the confrontation from its Arab-Zionist conflict to a Arab-vs-Arab conflict."

"Among such incidents is the plan to bring in conflict Jordan and the P.L.O. concerning the occupied territories," Al-Ra'i said.

"The Zionists don't really have a good perception of the situation since what really matters most is not who will administer the territories, but an elimination of the present occupation forces. The debate at the U.N. Security Council," the paper concluded, "is the result of active Arab efforts in the last two years and a show of their ability to shoulder their responsibilities."

Commenting on the continuing tragic situation in Lebanon, Ad Dostour Saturday said that, "The civil war in Lebanon reached a climax of tragedy when Lebanese fighter jets began to take part."

The paper asked whether the present situation is moving towards an end to the fighting or towards the time for foreign intervention.

"In any case," Ad Dostour said, "the plot against the Palestinians in Lebanon has ripened, but the Palestinian people will have nothing to do with it."

The paper said that the plot "was aimed at making a dramatic change in the Lebanese civil war to usurp the Palestinian success with the U.N. and the whole world but it failed."

"What are the Arabs going to do to end the treacherous plot before it is too late? the paper asked."

Cairo papers Thursday were calling for unified Arab action to end the Lebanese crisis.

The mass circulation newspaper Al-Akhbar in an editorial said that "the Arab countries can no longer remain idle about the Lebanese problem, confining themselves to expressions of sorrow, astonishment and denunciation over the killing and destruction going on there."

Prince Hassan asserts importance of farmers federation in Jordan Valley

AMMAN. — The Organisation of Farmer Labour in the Jordan Valley is a must to allow them to improve productivity and efficiency and meet the development targets. His Royal Highness Crown Prince Hassan said during his meeting with the Jordan Valley Farmers on Saturday at Deir Alla Agricultural Station.

"Their work should be organised in the framework of a federation to concentrate efforts and avoid duplication and unnecessary work. The establishment of a farmers Federation will help in providing the farmers with better services to allow them to diversify their products to cover the local consumption and improve marketing of their products to outside markets," he said.

"The federation," Crown Prince Hassan added, "will be the link between the farmers and the various government agencies. It will also act as their spokesman on all matters of concern to them," he concluded.

Government officials had earlier in the meeting explained the aims and benefits of such a federation which will include all the farmers and will make them participate in planning the agricultural policy for the Jordan Valley region.

The federation was established on democratic basis with equality between all farmers who will be considered as members of a collective partnership.

The President of the Jordan Valley Commission said that elections to the Federation's board of directors will be held soon.

The establishment of the federation was unanimously hailed as a reply to the farmers' most essential demands and needs.

Participating in the meeting were the Ministers of Agriculture and Supply, the President of the Jordan Valley Commission, Director of the Cooperative Organisation, President of the Royal Scientific Society and several agricultural officials.

Byzantine church uncovered in Jerusalem

JERUSALEM, Jan. 17, (R). — Israeli archaeologists have uncovered remnants of a big sixth century Byzantine church in the old city of Jerusalem.

Dr Meir Ben Dov, Deputy Director of the Excavations announced here that the Church, built during the reign of Justinian, and destroyed by the Persians was the "New Santa Maria" Church.

Other remnants of the edifice had been discovered in the Jewish Quarter in the Old City of Jerusalem and with the latest find it had now been possible to establish that the Byzantine Church measured 80 metres long and 60 metres wide, Dr. Ben Dov said.

Bin Shaker meets with U.S. Commander

AMMAN. — Lieutenant General Sharif Zeid bin Shaker, the Armed Forces Commander in Chief, received in his office Saturday morning General Robert Huyser, Deputy Commander of the American Forces in Europe and his accompanying delegation.

The American guest was briefed on the role and organisation of the Armed Forces and accompanied by the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations he visited the frontlines and an airbase where he witnessed a takeoff by the pilots of the base.

Later in the evening Generals Zeid bin Shaker and Huyser attended tattoo performance by the Jordan's army musical

Imported goods increase through Aqaba port

AMMAN, (JNA). — Aqaba Port last year witnessed a substantial increase in the number of ships and the volume of imported goods.

During that year 516 ships had docked at Aqaba and the volume of imported commodities amounted to 682,795 tons against 299 ships and 368,423 tons of imported goods in the previous year.

The Director of the Aqaba Port Department Mr. Mahmoud Shabsough said the increase was the result of the growing Jordan's imports and the use of the harbour by some Arab countries to unload part of their imports.

The Department, he said, has taken the necessary and urgent steps to meet this expected boom, by raising the Port's capacity from 600,000 tons to one million and a half tons. Consequently, the number of quays, yards and warehouses will be doubled.

Kuwaiti plea for Arab states to repay Egypt's debts

UWAI, Jan. 17 - (R). — A member of Kuwait's National Assembly today asked the oil-producing Arab states to repay Egypt's foreign debts, which he estimated at 16,000 million dollars.

Dr. Ahmed Al-Khatib, leader of the Arab Nationalist Group in the assembly, made this appeal in the assembly after strongly attacking Egypt's foreign policies.

He said that the failure of the Arab oil states to respond to the 15 year plan, Egypt's economic needs was have as objective, pushing the country into a state of "an American colony."

He called for a meeting of Arab oil states to discuss the subject and repay Egypt's debts from Arab funds now invested in America and Western Europe, which are being exploited by these states and indirectly benefitting Israel.

China expresses satisfaction with Gromyko's Tokyo talks

PEKING, Jan. 17, (AFP). — of Japan, said the agency. Mr Gromyko's recent statement now vividly demonstrates that the Japanese people have fought well and have done right and that truth is on their side. Their struggle for territorial recovery and stand against Soviet bullying is bound to forge ahead until final victory is won.

The favourable reaction by China towards Japan argues well for the resumption of Sino-Japanese talks for the conclusion of a peace treaty, diplomatic sources said here.

Mr Mikhi said January 13 that Japan was ready to sign this treaty including the "anti-hegemony" clause urged by China.

This clause, which Moscow considers anti-Soviet, has been until now the stumbling-block over the signing of the treaty. There has been no confirmation, however, here either from Japanese or Chinese sources of the resumption of joint talks.

New moves toward Vietnamese reunification

SAIGON, Jan. 17, (AFP). — North and South Vietnam took another small but significant step towards reunification with the announcement here that military police in the South Vietnamese capital would wear red armbands bordered with yellow, the colours of the North Vietnamese flag.

A statement by the military police headquarters of Ho Chi Minh City (Saigon) said the new armbands would bear the words "Military control" in black. The new order means that armbands with the blue and red colours of the Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) of South Vietnam are being scrapped.

Moves to end use of the PRG colours were already apparent here last September 2, Vietnam's National Day, when troops paraded with only North Vietnamese red flag with a gold star. On May 15 last year, shortly after the fall of Saigon, troops in the victory parade marched with both the North Vietnamese and PRG flags.

Meanwhile, the PRG cracked down on transfers of consumer goods — such as television sets, radios, motorcycles, textiles and clothes from South Vietnam to the North.

From now on, cadres, North Vietnamese soldiers and private citizens traveling to the north will be allowed to take only one television set, one motorcycle and 10 metres of cloth on each trip.

Observers here noted the measures were the first steps to end certain abuses by persons coming from the north who succumbed to the temptations offered by the relative abundance of goods in the south as opposed to the revolutionary austerity of North Vietnam.

Political violence continues in Turkey

ANKARA, Jan. 16, (R). — A high school student was reported killed in a clash between left and right wingers Saturday as political leaders attacked each other verbally over Turkey's unrelenting political violence.

The student was shot dead in the southeastern town of Reyhanli after left and right wings gangs fought with pistols, clubs and stones, according to the semi-official Anatolian News Agency.

Five people were injured, one seriously, in the battle, which brought the death toll in 11 weeks of student fighting to 182. The agency did not say what caused the clash and local officials were not available to give details.

In Ankara, Premier Suleyman Demirel accused Social Democratic Opposition Leader Bulent Ecevit of protecting and provoking anarchy. He compared his rival to Cuban Leader Fidel Castro and said he was "hatching new plots and screaming with ecstasy when he sees the seeds of discord blooming and spreading poison."

Austria agrees to PLO office in Vienna

VIENNA, Jan. 17, (R). — Austria said today it would allow the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) to open an office in Vienna.

Foreign Minister Erich Biehl told the newspaper Arbeiter Zeitung there would be no objections to the PLO opening an office here to handle representation at U.N. organisations and conferences.

The PLO which has observer status at the U.N., has already been allowed by the U.S. and Swiss governments to open offices in New York and Geneva. Dr Biehl's statement was the first confirmation that Austria, keen to boost its capital as the third United Nations city, had decided to follow suit.

A Palestinian request to open an information office, as well would have to be carefully considered before a decision was taken, Dr Biehl said.

The Austrian Foreign Minister was commenting on an interview in another Vienna newspaper, the Kurier, in which the head of the PLO political department, Mr Farouk Kaddoumi, said he hoped his organisation would be able to open an office here in two or three months.

Dr Biehl said Austria would ld probably agree to a PLO request to invite Mr Kaddoumi's deputy here to explain Palestinian views on the Mideast conflict.

He said the PLO formally asked for permission to open an office here last month, when its Budapest representative came to hold a meeting with the head of the Austrian Foreign Ministry.

Those who ordered the intervention of the regular armed forces in Lebanon threaten a general conflagration and France bears a heavy responsibility, the semi-official Algerian daily El Moudjahid said in an editorial today.

"This intervention, if it is not stopped and condemned by the government, risks leading to a general conflagration in the country."

It was officially the first such intervention but in fact the armed forces have always been the principal furnishers of arms to the rightists, the paper said.

TOKYO, Jan. 16, (AFP). — Nearly 80 per cent of the Japanese believe that the self-defence forces are necessary, but 53 per cent oppose a further buildup of defence power.

According to an official poll published Friday 33 per cent of the Japanese think there is no danger of Japan being involved in a major war.

The figure compares with 23 per cent in the previous survey in 1964.

Asked about main tasks of the self-defence forces, 57 per cent hoped it geared to defence of the national security, 21 per cent to ensure the "domestic security" and 13 per cent for natural disaster like earthquakes and floods.

The 1973 defence guideline sets the following limits to Japan's peace-time self-defence forces: ground forces 180,000 men, the maritime self-defence forces (navy) 250,000-280,000 tons of warships, and the air force 800 aircrafts.

512 Nigerians died during Haj

LAGOS, Jan. 17, (R). — An official count shows that 512 Nigerians died on the recent Moslem pilgrimage to Saudi Arabia, and 400 others did not return home.

Releasing the figures in Kano, main terminus for Nigeria's pilgrim airlifts, the executive secretary of the national pilgrims board, Alhaji Mornoni Bazzan said the board would make special arrangements in future to feed, house and transport elderly pilgrims in Saudi Arabia.

He said money was found on the bodies of many who died during the December pilgrimage, suggesting loss of appetite, fatigue and exposure were among the causes of death.

Polisario admits it holds 2 French school teachers

ALGIERS, Jan. 17, (AFP). — Algerian-backed Polisario Front nationalist guerillas in Western Sahara who have been claiming to hold eight French people as "prisoners of war" now admit they are only holding two French high school teachers apparently kidnapped while on a hunting trip from a town in South Morocco.

Last night a Polisario official stated officially that "rumours of the capture of a French pilot cannot be confirmed."

The admission differs considerably from a front-page report in the Algerian paper El Moudjahid on December 31 stating that a "spotter plane" had been shot down near the Sahara's border with Mauritania and its French pilot captured.

On Thursday, French officials confirmed in Paris that five young French people, three of them girls, and a Moroccan friend had disappeared in the region of Tarfaya (starting point for King Hassan's "green march" into the Sahara two months ago) on January 2.

Polisario at first said it had captured the five, but then withdrew the claim.

They were named as Jean and Beatrice Guyot, whose father is a political counsellor at the French Embassy in Rabat, Gilles and Nadine Pascon and Colette Blanchot.

As to the two "French soldiers" whom Polisario still claims to be holding, an informed source here has stated that they are French technical cooperation personnel doing non-military national service as teachers at the Agadir technical school.

They have been named as Jean-Paul Dief and Pierre Seguro de Carvalho. They vanished near Tarfaya on December 26.

According to sources here, they were kidnapped while on a shooting trip.

New firm to run Kuwaiti fleet

GLASGOW, Jan. 17 - (AFP). — A new firm to be known as the United Arab Shipping Company will soon take over the entire Kuwait fleet, the General Manager of the Kuwait Shipping Co. (KSC), said here Saturday.

Speaking at the launching here of a 23 thousand ton general purpose freighter for the KSC, he said Finance Ministers of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and some other gulf states would meet in Kuwait to formally set up the new company.

He said the United Arab shipping company would take over the 25 vessels now being operated by the KSC, and a further 22 ships which are on order, representing a carrying capacity of one million tons.

He said the management of the new company would be entrusted to the present members of the KSC, founded 11 years ago.

EEC energy plan includes $ 7 per barrel safeguard oil floor price

BRUSSELS, Jan. 16 - (R). - The Common Market Commission proposed a $7 per barrel floor price and a crisis oil sharing scheme as the basis for forging an EEC energy policy.

The plan will guarantee EEC energy production, especially high cost North Sea oil, against any future sharp fall in world petroleum prices from their present level of over $10.

EEC Energy Commissioner Henri Simonet told a press conference the floor price mechanism, to be debated by community ministers next month, would safeguard between 70 and 75 per cent of EEC oil production in 1985.

It would be based on a tax at EEC frontiers to prevent imports of crude oil and its heavy derivatives from entering the community at less than seven dollars a barrel.

EEC officials said the floor price scheme is based on understandings reached by EEC heads of government at their Rome summit last month it will give considerable satisfaction to Britain who has been particularly keen on the floor price to protect the high investments in North Sea oil.

Accord on the floor price was the main precondition put by British Premier Harold Wilson for giving up Britain's claim for a separate seat at the world energy and raw materials conference in Paris.

Mr. Simonet said the energy sharing scheme is the minimum requirement to start a community stand to prevent a recurrence of the problems caused by the Arab oil boycott.

In the first instance, the nine would agree to joint measures to cut energy consumption, he said.

The next step would be a system of surveillance by the Community of exports by individual countries to ensure that none was restricting the flow of oil across EEC frontiers. If this proved inadequate, other measures could be envisaged, he said.

France has been the most reluctant among the nine to both the floor price and the oil sharing idea.

Japan expects continued rise in its M.E. trade

TOKYO, Jan. 17 - (R). - Japanese International Trade and Industry Ministry Toshio Komoto said today that Japan would step up economic cooperation with Middle East countries.

After returning home from a two-week visit to Iran, Iraq, Egypt and Saudi Arabia as a special envoy of Prime Minister Takeo Miki, Mr. Komoto said that he felt the importance of frequent contacts between government leaders of Japan and these countries during his tour.

Mr. Komoto said he had reached basic accords on pending problems such as Japan's participation in Iran's petrochemical project.

He also said the government will deal positively with new requests for Japanese assistance.

Mr. Komoto said the Middle East countries were not only oil suppliers but also would be

Japan's best trade partners.

In reply to questions, Mr. Simonet said the floor price would not be indexed to the rising cost of living — an idea proposed by the members of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) for their own production. But the price could be revised at a future date if circumstances warranted.

He said that given the present level of world prices, the $7 "minimum safeguard price" had a largely psychological impact.

He predicted that Japan's annual trade with Iran will reach 15,000 million U.S. dollars in both directions and trade with Saudi Arabia and Iraq will also total 15,000 million dollars and 5,000 million dollars respectively.

Last year, Japan's trade was 6,800 million dollars with Iran and 1,200 million dollars with Iraq.

Leaders predict discord at European Socialist summit in Denmark

HELSINGOER, DENMARK, Jan. 17, (AFP). - Western European social democratic heads of government will discuss the Tindemans report on the future of the European Economic Community during a two-day European socialist summit starting here Sunday.

With leaders of other western European socialist parties they will also talk about relations between the EEC and the rest of Europe and the third world, developments in Portugal and Spain, and relations between European socialists and communists.

This tiny port north of Copenhagen, in the shadow of Kronborg castle where Shakespeare set "Hamlet" will thus be the venue for the first high-level discussion of the report presented on Dec. 31 by Belgian Premier Leo Tindemans on how to safeguard the future of the nine-nation community.

The social democrat premiers of four EEC countries—West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and Prime Ministers Harold Wilson of Britain, Joop Den Uyl of the Netherlands and Anker Joergensen of Denmark—will seek to harmonise their views on the proposals made by Mr. Tindemans.

They will no doubt also listen to possible comments on the report from Prime Minister Bruno Kreisky of Austria, Kalevi Sorsa of Finland, Odvar Nordli of Norway, Dom Mintoff of Malta and Olof Palme of Sweden—whose countries all have close relations with the EEC.

Mr. Tindemans can count on full support only from Mr. Schmidt. The British, Danish and Dutch premiers all have reservations on or are outright hostile to one or the other of his proposals, which include a "two-tier" development of EEC economic and monetary union in which countries such as Britain and Italy would be allowed to lag behind their richer partners.

The report also contains controversial proposals on the extension of majority voting to the field of foreign policy—which is not covered by the Treaty of Rome—and on European defence and the election of the European parliament through direct suffrage.

When the socialist leaders review the situation in Portugal, the question of financial aid to his country will probably be raised once more by Portuguese Socialist leader Mario Soares.

Mr. Soares is expected to stress that Portugal has still to receive promised aid from western European countries although the extreme left was defeated last November.

Italian inflation rate cut by more than half

ROME, Jan. 17 - (R). - Italy's inflation rate fell by more than a half in 1975 to just over 11 per cent by the end of the year, according to figures released today by the Central Statistics Institute, Istat.

Istat said the family consumer price index, based on 100 in 1970, stood at 179.7 in December compared to 161.7 a year before — a rise of only 11.1 per cent. At the beginning of 1975, family prices were rising at an annual rate of more than 25 per cent.

But during December the index rose one per cent, its fourth highest monthly increase over the year, Istat said.

The steady reduction of the inflation rate has been accompanied, however, by a serious fall in industrial production and rising unemployment, now standing at about 1,200,000 according to Labour Ministry estimates.

Relations between socialist and communist parties in western Europe will be discussed against the background of the Government crisis in Italy.

Informed sources said they expected conflicting views to be expressed by French socialist leader Francois Mitterrand and his West German colleagues, party chairman Willy Brandt and Chancellor Schmidt, who are hostile to any "popular front" strategy involving an alliance of socialists and communists.

His Spanish colleague Felipe Gonzales is likely to tell participants in the meeting that their countries should not assist the new Spanish regime until it has demonstrated more concretely that it intends to put Spain on the path toward democratic rule.

The Bank of England's floating bank rate was meanwhile reduced by a quarter-point to 10.75 per cent. The rate has come down from 12 per cent since last November.

W. Germany links aid programme to Indian bomb plans

BONN, Jan. 17 - (AFP). - West Germany would have to halt its development aid to India if India began making atomic bombs, West German Economic Cooperation Minister Ego Bahr said here today.

A great difference existed, militarily and politically, between setting off a nuclear charge and developing an atomic bomb, said Mr. Bahr in an interview with Deutsche Welle Radio.

He recalled that India had expressly said it was not expecting to make atomic bombs.

Of all the developing countries, India has received the most West German aid — 4.3 billion marks (about 1,650 million dollars) to date.

Dr. Kissinger's Moscow trip has been delayed in part because of U.S. displeasure over Soviet intervention in Angola which will be a major subject at Dr. Kissinger's talks.

He is expected to reiterate the Kremlin the offer he made at a news conference last week to support the withdrawal of South African troops from Angola before Soviet-sponsored Cuban forces leave, provide that the Cubans leave at short, stated interval following the South African departure.

Dr. Kissinger told the new conference that the new agreement he is seeking is to important to be subordinated to the Angola dispute.

If the arms agreement is reached the final version would have to be worked out in the ensuing three months by U.S. and Soviet negotiators at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) in Geneva.

Then it would be signed at summit meeting in Washington next year. The summit was originally expected to take place last June but was delayed because of disagreement at the Geneva talks.

U.K. reports record exports in December

LONDON, Jan. 16 - (AFP). - A new monthly record export performance helped Britain to halve its trade deficit in December, Trade Ministry figures issued Friday showed.

The deficit was reduced to £79 million compared with 167 millions in November.

At the same time official figures showed that the annual rate of inflation dropped below 25 per cent last month for the first time since last April.

At 24.9 per cent, the rate remained the highest in the industrialised world, but the figure was considered here as encouraging compared with the peak of 26.9 per cent recorded last August.

Government experts said Prime Minister Harold Wilson's target of achieving an annual rate of 10 per cent by next August now seems within reach. They said the month-to-month increase in prices in December was down to 1.2 per cent, the same as in November, while the annual rate for the second half of last year as a whole had been reduced to 13.9 per cent.

The Bank of England's floating bank rate was meanwhile reduced by a quarter-point to 10.75 per cent. The rate has come down from 12 per cent since last November.

Kissinger makes last attempt at SALT arms limitation agreement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 - (R). - Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will attempt to achieve a breakthrough on arms limitation talks in Moscow next week — and it may be his last chance to bring about a new agreement this year, some U.S. officials believe.

The dwindling popularity of President Ford, coupled with election-year attacks on any treaty Dr. Kissinger tries to negotiate, could persuade the Kremlin that it may as well wait until either Mr. Ford or his successor is elected President in November.

"By April, it should be clear whether or not Ford is a lame duck."

If he is so far behind that he has little chance of election, the Russians might decide it is better not to do business with him."

Ironically, top U.S. negotiators thought just two months ago that they were in a race against the possible retirement of Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev, 69. Washington now thinks Mr. Brezhnev will stay on, but officially concede new doubts about Mr. Ford's future.

Against this background Dr. Kissinger is setting off Monday night to make the final push towards formalising an arms agreement outlined by Mr. Ford and Mr. Brezhnev at Vladivostok in November 1974.

The Vladivostok agreement proposed that each country be limited to 2,400 strategic missiles and bombers, of which a maximum of 1,320 could carry multiple warheads.

Since then, the United States has proceeded to develop low-flying subsonic cruise missiles which, though capable of delivering hydrogen warheads deep inside the Soviet Union, are not covered by the Vladivostok agreement.

The United States has also pointed to Soviet deployment of a bomber, designated "Backfire," that could conceivably strike the United States on one-way missions. The Russians insist that Backfire is a tactical bomber and should not be included in the 2,400 total.

A likely compromise would be to restrict the range of cruise missiles and station the Backfire in central Russia so that neither weapon could strike

French 74 trade deficit turns to 75 surplus

PARIS, Jan. 16 - (AFP). - France turned a 1974 trade deficit into a surplus last year, but it will come out on the right side in 1976 only if oil imports are kept down and exports boosted, Foreign Trade Minister Raymond Barre announced Friday.

The 1975 surplus was about $1.3 billion against a 1974 deficit of $3.7 billion.

The improvement in the annual trade figures stemmed from a general fall in imports due to the recession and in particular from a 17 per cent drop in oil inflow.

Mr. Barre said that the slight recovery in France had already led to imports rising faster than exports.

"A balance in our foreign trade can be achieved this year with reasonable growth only if we continue our energy saving programme and boost our exports."

New tax haven in the sun

LONDON, Jan. 16 - (AFP). - A new tax haven may be established in the Seychelles islands when the Indian Ocean Archipelago achieves independence next June.

The Seychelle Prime Minister James Mancham, here for talks on the change in the islands status, told the press Friday try into a "mini-Switzerland" that he hoped to turn his country — a financial and trading centre without foreign exchange controls that would offer substantial fiscal advantages for firms from the industrial world.

Iran threatens oil price rise

TEHERAN, Jan. 17 - (AFP). - The Shah of Iran has threatened to raise the price of crude oil unless the foreign oil companies operating there increase their investment, according to a report in Saturday's Teheran press.

The newspaper Kayhan International quoted the Shah as saying the 14 foreign companies had not so far met their investment quota specified in the 1973 agreement, signed when Iran took over full ownership and control of the oil industry.

If they continued to refuse to do so, he hinted, Iran would be forced to meet all the investment needed to maintain production and increase the price of the oil sold to the companies accordingly.

"They can never force us with such practices to sell our national resources at a price lower than their real value," the Shah added.

According to the state-operated National Iranian Oil Company (NIOC), which controls all oil and gas exploitation in Iran, the companies owe $180 million in investment.

ough challenge for crews in '76 Winter rally

Derek Ledger on the 22nd and 23rd of January, are that it will be won by a fast and tough driver-navigator combination using a well prepared car.

The Winter Rally would be on the 22nd and 23rd of January, are that it will be won by a fast and tough driver-navigator combination using a well prepared car.

Work has been going on for more than three months to prepare this rally. Although the actual route is secret and will only be announced to the competitors as they start, certain information can be revealed.

The first car will leave the start at the Royal Automobile Club headquarters at 14.00 hrs on Thursday the 22nd of January; the remainder will start at two minute intervals.

There will be a special maximum speed test at the rear car part of the Hussein Sports City after which the competitors will follow a prescribed route which will eventually lead them to the finish of the first section at Aqaba, where the first car is due at approximately 19.30 hrs.

The real challenge starts on Friday the 23rd of January, with a maximum speed special stage on the beach south of the port of Aqaba.

The re-start of the road section will be from the Aqaba Hotel at 11.00 hrs. and from then on the crews will have a tough and varied route, including several more special stages, before reaching the finish at the Royal Automobile Club in Amman well after midnight.

Rallying in Jordan is essentially an amateur sport and enthusiasts provide assistance and sometimes even cars for the more successful drivers and navigators. In this year's event there will be official teams entered by Renault, Toyota, Volvo, Datsun and Volkswagen.

There has been feverish activity among the dealers to obtain the services of the more successful crews, and although loyalties have generally remained strong, one or two people will be making a change.

The Renault drivers will be striving to regain the supremacy they held until the recent string of Toyota successes. After a disappointing Summer Rally last year, the morale of the Volvo supporters was raised with a win in the short Balqa Rally in October, and they will once again be fielding a team.

Datsun are also returning in strength after a period in the doldrums due mainly to a lack of drivers. There will of course be many individual entries featuring several other makes of cars, some perhaps more suited to rally conditions than others.

It is generally agreed, though, that the main challenge should be between the Toyotas and the Renaults. This does not mean to say that anyone else is considered an outsider—far from it. Last year's winning crew of Ghassan Asfour and Osama Marar were both competing in their first rally, so the outcome is wide open.

Whoever wins the Winter Rally will have shown a combination of above average driving ability, endurance and teamwork; this could also be said for all the crews who manage to check-in at the finish. It should be an exciting and action packed two days.

WINNERS. — Ghassan Asfour and Osama Marar in their Renault 17.

READY TO START. — Two competitors, Hamdi Tabbaa and Fuad Hallac, in their Renault 17 Gordini on the line for 1975's start.

SECTION. — Driver and navigator skills will be put to the test in the special sections of the rally.

Tito to undergo more treatment

BELGRADE, Jan. 15 - (AFP). — President Josip Broz Tito of Yugoslavia is suffering from sciatica and a chill and will undergo treatment "for some time," the official Tanyug News Agency reported in an urgent dispatch Thursday.

It is unusual for the agency to mark its reports urgent, but Yugoslav national television left a bulletin on the 83 year-old leader's health to the end of its newscast.

Observers here predicted that Marshal Tito's scheduled trip to Mexico at the end of this month could be postponed. He was expected also to visit Cuba.

Marshal Tito's last public appearance was on Jan. 6 when he returned to Belgrade from a week's visit to Zagreb. He was shown there on television, celebrating new year's eve until six a.m., dancing smoking cigars and drinking with aides.

His health has apparently rarely given cause for concern, despite his age, though he underwent prolonged treatment for sciatica 11 months ago. In May, 1973 and again in February 1974, he took several week's rest on the advice of his doctors.

Britain has a printing problem

Europe's biggest single printing project — producing the 154 telephone directories that cover the United Kingdom — is going metric. The first copies in the new size, printed on A4 paper, have been distributed to subscribers at Sutton near London.

They are 21 mm taller than their predecessors and the Post Office says this will allow another 30 entries on each page, postpone the splitting of a growing directory into two volumes and help keep costs in check.

Twenty million telephone users are listed in the UK's directories and the number grows by more than a million a year.

Clerides back as Greek Cypriot negotiator

NICOSIA, Jan. 17, (R). — Greek Cypriot leader Glafkos Clerides said Saturday he had withdrawn his resignation as his community's chief negotiator in talks with Turkish Cypriots.

In a formal statement, Mr Clerides said he had been moved to change his mind by appeals from his parliamentary colleagues, Greek Premier Constantine Karamanlis and United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

Mr Clerides, who has represented the Greek Cypriot side since 1968, added that he would be explaining why he had initially tendered his resignation last Monday in letters to Archbishop Makarios, the Cypriot President, and Mr Karamanlis.

At this stage, he said he could not make anything public, "as this would cause great national harm."

Mr Clerides also said he had either tendered his resignation or threatened to resign several times in the past.

However, he categorically denied speculation in the Cyprus press that last Monday's resignation was connected either with the split in the Greek Cypriot leadership or because of attacks on him by his political rivals.

"The reasons stated in my letter are much wider and touch upon the more general public interest," he said.

Stating that he would continue as negotiator, Mr Clerides said "I cannot ignore the fact that despite the tendering of my resignation, the President of the Republic, the council of Ministers and the National Council have not accepted it and have not appointed any negotiator in the meantime."

Paris auction centre falls to the sledge hammer

PARIS, Jan. 16 - (AFP). — Going, going, gone.

These famous words will be said at the Hotel Drouot, France's premier auction centre for over a century, for the last time next week.

For the centuries-old building in central Paris will be torn down.

On Jan. 23 France's leading auctioneers and antique dealers will hold a souvenir sale of Drouot catalogues dating from 1860-1950.

On Jan. 31 they will all go to a final ball to be held on the premises.

Auctions will be held in another centre for the next four years, when they will be started again in the new Drouot building.

FNLA denies situation will lead to guerilla activities

KINSHASA, ZAIRE, Jan. 17, (AFP). — The Angolan National Liberation Front (FNLA) today denied reports that it was planning guerilla reprisals against countries which had sent troops into Angola.

The New York Times on Thursday quoted FNLA Political Bureau member Paulo Tuba as saying the situation in Angola was so bad that the FNLA might have to use international guerilla tactics to keep its cause alive.

Mr Tuba told the paper:

"We'll do what the Palestinians are doing. If we can't defeat the Russians and Cubans who invaded our country, we'll use Palestinian tactics until the world finds a just solution."

But an FNLA communique issued here today denied the news. It said the FNLA planned to step up its diplomatic offensive to get the Organisation of African Unity, United Nations and the Security Council to demand withdrawal of all foreign troops from Angola.

The communique said it was undeniable that part of Angola had been invaded by the Cuban army and "Katangese gendarmes" from Zaire. Recent FNLA reverses in the north were not due to the rival MPLA (People's Liberation Movement) forces, but to the Cuban army, the communique said.

The expulsion of the "Soviet imperialist running dogs" would show the real strength of the Angolan patriotic forces in the country, it said.

Meanwhile, while pushing ahead with its diplomatic offensive, the FNLA would continue its people's war of resistance against the 13,000-strong Soviet-Cuban and ex-Katangese invasion armies, said the communique.

Mr. Nyerere who is on a five day official visit to India, referred to the "existence of gross inequalities of wealth and power between two states." He called on the rich nations to accept the transfer of wealth to the poor nations as "a binding obligation" in order to contribute to the extension of human development.

He stressed the need for changes in the world system of finance and exchange to block the present automatic flow of wealth from the poor to the rich.

President Ahmed later speaking at a banquet for Mr Nyerere said that India was "deeply" concerned at the continuing strife and bloodshed in Angola. He condemned South African intervention in the former Portuguese colony.

Mr Ahmed also declared India's continued commitment to "Africa's ceaseless struggle for full emancipation and dignity."

President Nyerere said India and Tanzania had the same basic attitudes on non-alignment, exclusion of big power bases from the Indian Ocean, anti-colonialism and on the apartheid policy of South Africa.

76 detained workers free Madrid squabble continues

MADRID, Jan. 17, (R). — Seventy-six worker representatives were released from security headquarters here today when police dropped charges that they were organising a general strike movement in Madrid.

A police spokesman said the rest of a group of 140 who were arrested on Thursday night, were still being questioned about possible political aims behind current labour unrest in Spain.

The disputes in the capital centred on striking bank clerks who have joined engineers and construction workers in staging lightning stoppages for pay increases.

For the second consecutive day, riot police evicted employees of four major banks in central Madrid who were holding strike meetings in the main banking halls.

More than a thousand clerks subsequently occupied a nearby Church to continue their meeting.

But there was optimism that an end to the current conflicts could be in sight.

A spokesman for the bank clerks said negotiations to end their dispute could begin next week as employers appeared.

Some facilities may not be ready for Summer Olympics

MONTREAL, Jan. 15, (R). — The president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), Lord Killanin, says the 1976 Summer Olympic Games will open here as scheduled on July 17 but track and field facilities may not be ready.

Rumours have abounded lately that the games might be cancelled. But sources here said that if the track and field facilities cannot be completed on time, the events could be shifted to another stadium such as the Autostade, the 32,000 seat home of the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

Meanwhile, an official of the Olympics Installations Board said Wednesday night that decision on whether the games will take place in Montreal as scheduled will be announced here on January 28.

ing obligation" in order to contribute to the extension of human development.

He stressed the need for changes in the world system of finance and exchange to block the present automatic flow of wealth from the poor to the rich.

President Ahmed later speaking at a banquet for Mr Nyerere said that India was "deeply" concerned at the continuing strife and bloodshed in Angola. He condemned South African intervention in the former Portuguese colony.

Mr Ahmed also declared India's continued commitment to "Africa's ceaseless struggle for full emancipation and dignity."

President Nyerere said India and Tanzania had the same basic attitudes on non-alignment, exclusion of big power bases from the Indian Ocean, anti-colonialism and on the apartheid policy of South Africa.
